COUNT ONE

[18 U.S.C. § 371]

[ALL DEFENDANTS]

A. INTRODUCTORY ALLEGATIONS

At times relevant to this Indictment:

- 1. The San Pedro Bay Port Complex, which is comprised of the Ports of Los Angeles and Long Beach (the "Port of Los Angeles"), was the busiest cargo container port in the Western Hemisphere. For example, in 2023, the Port of Los Angeles handled approximately 8.6 million Twenty-Foot equivalent units of cargo capacity, the most in the nation, with over $292 billion in estimated trade value during the year.
- 2. The United States had established an inspection process to protect vital national security interests and otherwise ensure that goods are properly admitted into the United States. Among other things, the law required entities or persons importing good into the United States to make available for inspection any goods they sought to import into the United States. Importers were also required to ensure that any cargo containers carrying their goods were securely locked prior to inspection by CBP.
- 3. The United States Department of Homeland Security, United States Customs and Border Protection ("CBP") was the government agency responsible for inspecting imports. To execute its duties at the Port of Los Angeles, CBP would search containers that CBP selected for closer inspection. Once a cargo container was selected for inspection, the importer of the container was required to arrange for transportation of the container from the Port of Los Angeles to a designated government inspection facility. During such transportation, cargo containers were required to be secured with bolt security seals until reaching the designated inspection facility.

- 4. Defendant WEIJUN ZHENG, also known as ("aka") "Sonic," controlled multiple logistics companies that operated in the Central District of California. ZHENG also controlled and/or managed one or more of the warehouses used by the conspirators to store, conceal, and sell contraband smuggled into the United States from China, including a warehouse located at 1365 Darius Court, in the City of Industry, California (the "Darius Court Contraband Warehouse").
- 5. Defendant HEXI WANG was the manager of K&P International Logistics LLC, a company that hired commercial truckers to transport shipping containers from the Port of Los Angeles. Among other things, defendant WANG controlled and operated a warehouse located at 16720 Chestnut Street, in the City of Industry, California, which the co-conspirators used to store, conceal, and sell contraband smuggled into the United States from China (the "Chestnut Contraband Warehouse").
- 6. Defendant JIN LIU, aka "Mark," owned K&P International Logistics LLC and assisted defendant WANG operate the business out of the Chestnut Contraband Warehouse. Among other things, defendant LIU managed the finances of the Chestnut Contraband Warehouse and issued payments to truck drivers who transported shipping containers containing contraband smuggled into the United States.
- 7. Defendant DONG LIN, aka "Liam," controlled and operated the Darius Court Contraband Warehouse, together with defendant ZHENG.
- 8. Defendants DANIEL ACOSTA HOFFMAN, aka "Slinks," and JESSE JAMES ROSALES would help coordinate the transportation of the

- shipping containers containing contraband from the Port of Los Angeles to warehouses controlled by the co-conspirators, including the Darius Court Contraband Warehouse and Chestnut Contraband Warehouse.

- 9. Defendant ANDY ESTUARDO CASTILLO PEREZ was a driver for M4 Transportation Inc., a company which coordinated the movement of shipping containers from the Port of Los Angeles, including large shipments of contraband the co-conspirators smuggled into the United States from China.
- 10. Defendant MARCK GOMEZ was the owner and operator of Fannum Trucks LLC, a company which coordinated the movement of shipping containers from the Port of Los Angeles, including large shipments of contraband the co-conspirators smuggled into the United States from China.
- 11. Defendant GALVIN BIAO LIUFU worked at the Chestnut Contraband Warehouse and helped direct the transportation of shipping containers containing contraband to warehouses controlled by the coconspirators, including the Chestnut Contraband Warehouse.

B. OBJECTS OF THE CONSPIRACY

The objects of the conspiracy were to be accomplished in substance as follows:

- 15. Defendants ZHENG, WANG, LIU, LIUFU, and LIN, would maintain and/or operate warehouses to store, conceal, and sell large amounts of contraband goods that were illegally imported into the United States.
- 16. When containers containing counterfeit and/or other contraband goods were selected by CBP for inspection, defendants ZHENG, WANG, LIU, LIUFU, and ROSALES, would hire commercial truck drivers, including GOMEZ and CASTILLO PEREZ, to transport the contraband containers from the Port of Los Angeles to locations controlled by the co-conspirators, including warehouses controlled and/or managed by defendants ZHENG, WANG, LIU, LIN, and LIUFU, so that contraband could be removed from the containers before CBP inspection.
